"We Bring Extraordinary Stories To Life"

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE TO THE WOODFORD SUN, VERSAILLES, KY

Special Evening Planned as Documentary Fundraising Event

PRINCETON, KY—September 3, 2011—Award winning film producer Sam Koltinsky of Marvo Entertainment Group LLC, the Woodford County Historical Society and CastlePost announce a special evening of fun and entertainment in support of the two-hour documentary, "My Kentucky Home: Woodford County." Currently in production for Marvo's My Kentucky Home series, the shows will air on PBS affiliate KET. This signature occasion is set for Tuesday, October 11, at 6:30 p.m. at CastlePost in Versailles, Kentucky.

In addition to receiving an update from Koltinsky on the progress of the documentary, this exciting evening will also feature special guests. Country music icon and hometown favorite John Conlee will be on hand to entertain the audience with his outstanding musical talent and to greet guests during the evening. "It is always great for me to come back home and have the opportunity to see and visit with my hometown folks. It is an honor to also join with the Historical Society and help work for the funding of the "My Kentucky Home Woodford County" documentary, which will depict the rich history and heritage of our wonderful home area," says Conlee.

Widely recognized as the founder of the Documentary Channel, Tom Neff will share his thoughts on the importance of community documentaries such as the one currently in production for Woodford County. "The almost complete loss of personalization and regionalism in all aspects of our society has made the community documentary a critical aspect of our American culture. It is one of the last bastions of defense against the complete homogenization of our society and modern culture. A community documentary shows us how local issues, people, and culture can reflect the society as a whole: and it critically emphasizes the importance of the individual, showing us how one person, one small group, one community can make a difference," stated Neff.

Actively supporting the Woodford documentary and the CastlePost event, Dona Wilson, historical society treasurer, remarked, "The Woodford County Historical Society is pleased to be working with Marvo Entertainment Group to support having a video film made to showcase our beautiful Woodford County." Event committee member, Ken Kerkhoff, added, "This is an incredible opportunity to showcase the history, beauty, quality of life and unique advantages Woodford County has to offer to new residents and industry partners." Tickets for the event are $100 per person and may be purchased at the Woodford County Historical Society or the Woodford County Chamber of Commerce. Tickets may also be ordered online at www.woodfordcountyinfo.com. The cost of the ticket is tax deductible. Charles Martin, CastlePost general manager, promises you won't be disappointed when you arrive for the event because "CastlePost is a castle on the outside and a palace on the inside." Koltinsky invites the community to come and be a part of this extraordinary evening.

This two-hour documentary is underwritten in part by Joe and Debbie Graviss of Graviss McDonald's Restaurants, the Woodford County Historical Society, and CastlePost.
